

GAP

Stop the killing

Since 2005, more than 1000 workers have died in fires and building collapses while sewing clothing in Bangladesh for companies like Gap and Walmart.

These deaths could have been prevented, but Gap and Walmart are refusing to pay for reforms and to work with workers and their unions to put an end to the killing and corporate crimes.

Any day, there could be another deadly fire with workers locked inside once again.

Tommy Hilfiger has signed a binding fire safety agreement with unions and labor rights groups, and Gap should do the same.

Call on Gap to save lives and adopt real fire safety now!

TELL GAP INC:

Sign fire safety agreement -- pay 10 cents more per garment.

Take action at LaborRights.org/Safety
